WEATHER INDICATIONS.

The special bulletin issued from the Signal Office to-day says:

For Tuesday generally fair weather and slightly lower temperature are indicated for the Atlantic Coast States.

Commissioners on Telephone Poles' suggests a rather ludicrous spectacle. It may, however, be too literally construed.

THE selection of a pastor for the Church of the Epiphany is a matter in which a large portion of the community is interand the fact that the present revered pastor and the vestry should have arrived at a choice so promptly and unantmously is a subject of congratulation and a very strong indorsement of the coming man. The Rev. Dr. Brewster, of Detroit, who is thus honored, is described as being an eloquent, earnest and devout man, an effective and convincing speaker and a successful and efficient worker. Dr. Paret commends him as a man competent and worthy in every respect for the high trust reposed in him, and this indorsement will secure for him a hospitable and favorable

THE press of this city and country loses an untiring servant, the community a good and true citizen, and the cause of right and justice an earnest and courageous supporter in the death of Mr. Oscar K. Harris. Mr. Harris combined rare qualities of heart and brain. He was an active and an energetic mannoble in his impulses, indomitable in will, brilliant in thought. Throughout a journalistic career of more than a score of years, and as varied as it was trying, as active as it was successful, he enjoyed the respect and love of all who knew him, and carned the gratitude and veneration of his associates.

His work will long be remembered; his good deeds have borne fruit abundantly; his kind heart and sterling character will always be recalled by his former associates with feelings of gratitude and affection.

WHILE we have been fretting ourselves about our petty affairs, such as where the naugural ball is to be held or who Mr. Cleveland is to marry, a great reform has been accomplished across the water in the mother country. That grand old man, Mr. Gladstone—for even they who differ with him must acknowledge him a grand man has, after the greatest exertions and in spite of incalculable opposition, suc-ceeded in having Parliament pass the Franchise bill.

Envy, jealousy, abuse, suspicion—he en-countered all, but steadfast in his purpose he continued until the reform has been ac complished.

It is estimated that the bill will give the franchise to about 2,000,000 voters. The borough and county franchises will be equalized. At present about 81 per cent. of the population in England vote. At present in England and Wales the county electorate is 932,850 and the borough electorate 1,591,451. The votes added to the county electorate will aggregate 938,544 in Scotland, 194,096. In Ireland it will add 376,451 to the county vote and 33,757 to the borough vote, making a total of 1,542,648. The service, lodger and other franchises will bring the additional votes up to nearly 2,000,000, or from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 for the United Kingdom, which will be some thing akin to universal suffrage.

APRIVATE letter received in this city shows that the committee having charge of the erection of a statue of the late Presi dent Garfield at the foot of the Capitol have determined upon the attitude and dress of the proposed bronze figure. As is usual in such cases many plans were sugested and many hints volunteered. It was one of those cases in which almost everybody had a brilliant idea and everybody's views could not have been adopted without representing the martyred President in every imaginable attitude from that of the barefoot boy upon the towpath to that of the mature statesmen struck down by the assassin's bullet.

Some wanted to have Garfield in military uniform with his sword at his side, others wished to see him seated at the Cabinet table, and so it went on through an infinite number and variety.

The plan finally agreed upon, and which is far the best, contemplates that the figure shall face the House of Representatives, the scene of so much of Garfield's labor and triumph, and shall be in civilian dress.

The attitude will also be that assumed by Garfield when in the agt of taking the oath at the time of his inauguration. Thus a graceful and natural posture is secured, an important moment in his life comme orated and a pleasant memory revived in the minds of all who have ever seen him upon his feet in the excitement and earnest ness of debate. The decision of the com mittee is an eminently wise one. The suggestion that the figure should be arrayed in military garb was a bad one, for many reasons; not least among these is the deplorable fact that our national statue galleries already contain a very undue proportion of military and naval heroes.

We are not a nation of warriors and we do not render most homage to top-boots and epaulets and dangling swords, and yet it is painfully evident that these rather than the gowns of our religious and collegiate leaders or the insignia of any other class are prominent among our statues. Our inventors, scientists, orators and authors have and should have a far greater claim upon popular admiration and gratitude, and it will be a welcome innovation that finds room for more of these classes unour marble pedestals in places of he actor is now in New York.

A New York dispatch to the Philadelphia Press says: "Positive information was received from Washington to-day of the result of the call of the committee of his friends on the President to ask him to become a candidate. The reply was a firm and decided declination to enter into any contest for the place. He was then asked what he would do in the event that a majority of the Republicans in the Assembly should express a wish to make him Senator. The reply was so far satisfactory that the committee decided to at once begin a thorough personal canvass of the Assembly to ascertain the President's exact strength.

own the Commercial-Advertiser together, but they quarrelied both over politics and business, and when they discoved partnership it is said warren got the lion's share of the money, and didn't give Matthews all the experience, either. Warren used to be what Mr. Arthur called a "practical politician" in the matter of offices, but for the past two years he seems to have made a virtue of necessity, though he still has great inducate at home, a ract well illustrated in the size of the President-elect's Buffalo vote. Mr. Warren is very intimate with the President and managed his canvass for him at Chicago last summer."

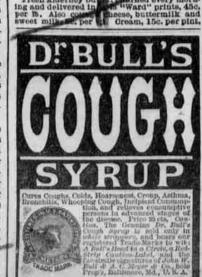

Coming to the Inauguration. Coming to the Inauguration.

The General Committee of the New York County Democracy has unanimously adopted a resolution pledging that organization to attend the inauguration of President Gleveland in Washington. Judge Andrew White promised to take a carlead of members of the Twenty-third District to Washington and keep the silver punch bowl, weighing 16% pounds, which has been presented to him, full of punch from the beginning to the end of the fourney. One hundred members of the samuel J. Randall Association of Philadelphia have signed the roll and paid the first installment of the $50 each required for the trip to the inauguration. The Tammany Democracy have also determined to attend the inauguration in large force, and claim to have secured the right of column of the civic portion of the procession.

Thanks, Neighbor.
